Burkina Faso

The Council of Ministers of 23 July approved a revised finance law raising both receipts and spending while leaving the deficit unchanged, and recorded 47.30% budget execution at 30 June.

Cape Verde

Parliament approved the rectificative budget for 2026 on 31 July at CVE 103,888 million against a voted CVE 95,675 million and a projected execution of CVE 104,011 million; it does not disclose a digital figure, though connectivity is named among the priorities of the reorganisation. The act had not appeared in the official gazette at 4 August, so the revised organic table that would show whether the digital ministry's reprogrammed position is ratified or reversed is not available. Cape Verde passed no rectificative budget for 2025, so that year's revised position was administrative rather than statutory.

Congo

Both chambers adopted the rectifying finance law unanimously and unamended on 23 July, lifting expenditure to FCFA 2,561.069bn against revenue of FCFA 2,778.016bn for a projected surplus of FCFA 216.947bn. It rests on re-pricing the barrel at US$67 from US$60.3 with output held flat; the first of its four objectives is consolidating public revenue through digitalisation, and no revised figure for the digital vote is published. It was adopted but not gazetted at the date of this issue.

Egypt

The sector's own money was put before parliament. The planning minister told the House of Representatives that EGP 13bn of public investment is allocated to the communications and information technology sector in the 2025/26 plan, against plan targets of US$8.5bn in annual digital exports of which US$6bn from outsourcing. It is a plan allocation rather than an outturn, and the base holds no execution figure against it — nor any published state digital appropriation, which is recorded as Not held.

Ethiopia

Parliament ratified a 2.34 trillion birr federal budget for FY2026/27 on 7 July, up 21.3% on the year before, carrying ETB 9,049,102,733 of identifiable digital lines against ETB 3,754,558,918 the previous year and ETB 1,206,492,295 the year before that.

Two caveats the budget documents support. The FY2024/25 to FY2025/26 rise is mostly the birr float following the move to a floating exchange rate, not fiscal expansion. And the FY2026/27 total is dominated by the single AI university line, so the underlying operating envelope for digital government grew far less than the headline.

No execution data has been published for the whole of FY2025/26, and no audit is available for any year in scope — so a budget that has grown roughly sevenfold in nominal terms across three years cannot be checked against what was actually spent.

Gambia

The finance ministry gave its fullest account yet of what digitalised collection has recovered. On 30 July 2026 the minister said total tax collected rose from D11 billion in 2022 to D25 billion in 2025, with rate rises only on gambling, alcohol and tobacco, and credited a named stack running from ASYCUDA World and digital excise stamps to fuel marking, rental tax digitalisation and electronic invoicing. He read reforms lifting collections by more than 100% as evidence of prior leakage rather than of under-taxation, and said tax to GDP moved from 9% in 2022 to 13% in 2025. It is an attribution by the collecting side, not an evaluation.

Four days later the revenue authority published a 2026 target of D27.5 billion — the first forward number in the series, and the first testable one. The implied step from 2025 is about a tenth, far below the run rate the attribution rests on.

Ghana

Parliament approved a multi-year expenditure commitment on 28 July for three revenue platforms — a fiscal device policy, a cross-border electronic-commerce tax system going live in September 2026, and a domestic collection platform still to be procured — with published benefit projections and no disclosed total cost, contract duration or termination terms. The opposition rejected all three, alleging the cross-border operator could take up to 3% of collections, about GH¢690m a year, and that the unit cost of 40,000 fiscal devices and who ultimately pays for them were never disclosed.

Kenya

The 2027/28 budget process launched on 24 July naming the Digital Superhighway a priority sector, with no ceiling or figure published.

Mali

On 23 July the fund's board cut the 2026 budget by 32%, from FCFA 41,151,471,000 to FCFA 27,886,688,000, recording receipts at 56% of forecast and expenditure of FCFA 3,188,967,162 — 8% of the annual budget in six months. The board attributed the shortfall to the absence of a procedures manual, late budget approval, delayed sign-off on construction studies and insecurity in project areas, and named a new director-general.

Mauritius

The 2026-2027 budget's tax and revenue measures as enacted are not held. Three fetch paths into the National Assembly's bills library returned an HTML shell rather than the 128-page Finance Bill: the library is script-rendered and exposes no static file path, so acquiring it needs a browser rather than an automated fetch. Nothing in this window changed that.

Mozambique

The cyber security fund is provided for in statute from 1 July, with state appropriations named among its revenue lines alongside a flat 1% levy on licensed cybersecurity providers. No line for it appears in the FY2026 state budget final maps, which were set before the law was published, and the regulator has no capital allocation at all this year. The first budget in which such a line could be expected is FY2027.

Senegal

The constraint on that deployment is money, and the agency said so itself. On 17 August its director-general said the agency's 2026 budget had still not been notified, and named that as what is holding back the pace of the Kaolack phase — the deployment of the civil-status software and activation of the citizen request platform across Nioro, Ndiedieng and Kaolack between 10 and 20 August. The base holds no appropriation figure for the agency for 2026, which is recorded as a gap.

Sudan

Sudan's state minister of finance reaffirmed a commitment to implementing a Treasury Single Account system at the African Summit for Social Impact in Abuja on 2 August 2026, inviting IGAD, COMESA, the World Bank, the IMF and the African Development Bank to future development-financing engagement, with no target date, phase or coverage given for the TSA itself.

Tunisia

A restricted ministerial council on 4 August 2026 set the orientations of the 2027 draft budget and named accelerating the digital transition as a structuring axis, alongside investment, formalisation of the informal sector, tax equity and renewable energy. No allocation, target or named programme is attached to the digital line, so nothing here establishes what the state intends to spend on it.

Figures are dated because most are time-varying: a figure carries the date it was true, not the date you are reading it. Where the base holds no reliable statement, the document says Not held rather than leaving a silence — those are counted, and listed at the end.

This is a dated edition and is not revised after publication. If a figure here has moved, the current edition will say so.
